Ribeau Elected President Of Bowling Green

Sidney Ribeau

Sidney A. Ribeau, vice-president for Academic Affairs at Cal Poly Pomona, will be the ninth president of Bowling Green State University, Bowling Green, OH.

Ribeau, who has been with Cal Poly Pomona since 1992, was previously with Cal State San Bernardino and San Luis Obispo, will succeed Paul Olscamp, who retires in June.

"It is with definite mixed feelings that I heard of Sid Ribeau's selection as president of Bowling Green State University," said Cal Poly Pomona President Bob H. Suzuki. "I have absolutely no doubt that he will be an outstanding university president, and that he will serve Bowling Green in his usual outstanding manner. He has done yeoman's duty at Cal Poly Pomona, and will be sorely missed."

Ribeau was among six finalists who were brought to Bowling Green's campus for two days of interviews with constituent groups, administrators, trustees and the public.

"Bowling Green is going to like Sidney Ribeau and Sidney Ribeau is going to like Bowling Green," said John Kaskey, vice president of that university's Board of Trustees. "Dr. Ribeau fulfills the credentials that the presidential search committee established after listening to all the constituencies of that university. He has a warm and easy manner that portrays his self-confidence. I think Dr. Ribeau will not only do things right -- he will also do the right things. That is a leader!"

Police Search For Felony Larceny Suspect

The help of the public is requested in locating a wanted felony larceny suspect from the State of Washington. The suspect Maurice Dale Hayes is described as a White male 5'10", 150 pounds, with white hair and blue eyes. He is 54 years old but may try to attempt to pass himself off as in his late 70s.

He is wanted for questioning by Detective Ron Sanfilippo of the Riverside Police concerning the disappearance of an elderly widow last seen at 2:00 p.m., 4/19/95. The safety of Lilian Schroeder is in question. She is 84 years of age and is having health problems that affect her competency and requires medication. Lilian is 5'4", 130 pounds with brownish-grey hair and glasses.

Two vehicles are believed to be being used the first is Mrs. Schroeder's 1994 Chrysler four door beige in color. The plate is 3GXP506. A second vehicle may be involved that may have a bad license number as it comes back not on file. This car is described as an older blue General Motors product being driven by a subject known as Roland Lee Hayes, (28 years, 130 pounds black hair and blue eyes).

Tomorrow's Leaders Today

Five of Riverside's most promising young leaders were named McDonald's "Black History Makers of Tomorrow" for their excellent scholarship and leadership abilities. A total of $19,000 was awarded to high school juniors at the eighth annual scholarship awards luncheon and college workshop sponsored by the McDonald's Operators' Association of Southern California. Carroll Ellison, McDonald's franchisee (far right) congratulates (l to r) Summer Mayfield of La Sierra High School, Janiene Luke of Rubidoux High School, Ross Opoku of Lake Elsinore High School, (back row l to r) Gina Johnstone of Temecula Valley High School, and Dana McDice of Corona High School for their outstanding qualities and essays on "How I Plan To Make an Impact on Black History."

Manhattan Archaeological Discovery Shed Light On Sacred African Rites

Discovery of a Colonial-era burial site for enslaved Blacks in New York has shed light on a little-known sacred African dance — a cultural Rite that ultimately gave rise to the development of modern blues and jazz, according to a historian at the University of California, Riverside.

The Ring Shout, a circular dance performed to the rhythmic singing of its participants during burials rites, declined in the early 20th Century, but not before influencing tremendously the musicians who first created the blues and then jazz, according to Sterling Stuckey, UCR professor of history and one of the few scholars who has studied the Ring Shout.

The dance, a variant of the Circle Dance that is a central aspect of African funeral ceremonies, was almost certainly a prominent feature of funerals at the site in lower Manhattan where it is believed more than 20,000 people — mostly enslaved Blacks — were buried in the 1700s, according to Stuckey. "The New Ring Shout," an artistic work featuring quotations from African-American historical figures set in stone, marks the site of the African-American Burial Ground in New York City, which has been designated an historical landmark.

Discovered in 1991 during construction of a high-rise federal office building, the five-acre site is believed by scholars to be the oldest municipal and only pre-Revolutionary African cemetery known to exist in the United States. Stuckey has been asked to join the research team studying the site, to help interpret the cultural dimension of the burial grounds.

The discovery has drawn greater attention to the Ring Shout, both among historians and the lay public, said Stuckey, whose 1987 book "Slave dimension of the burial grounds.

Culture" included the first in-depth historical examination of the Ring Shout.

The Ring Shout, as the dance came to be known in the U.S. following enslavement, became a foundation of spiritual and cultural unity for slaves, according to Stuckey, who currently is writing a book under contract with Oxford University Press to be titled "The Fires of Creation: The Ring Shout and Formation of Black Culture in America." An essay by Stuckey on the sacred origins of jazz and the blues will appear in the May issue of Lennox Avenue, a journal published by the Center for Black Music Research at Columbia College in Chicago.

The dance played a pivotal role in unifying different African peoples who, suddenly thrust together on slave ships sailing to America, found they shared a common cultural heritage, he said.

Circular dancing was also a principal feature at New York's annual Pinkster Celebration, an annual spring cultural festival in which Blacks were encouraged to participate. The Pinkster festival took place a few blocks from the African-American Burial Ground.

In fact, the use of the circle in slave ceremony was so profound that Stuckey believes it was what gave form and meaning to Black religion and art. "The Ring Shout was a significant factor in the birth of the blues and jazz."

Although students of the blues ascribe its birth to the last quarter of the 19th century, Stuckey suggests the blues were born at least two generations earlier, perhaps as early as 1830. The juxtaposition of two seemingly opposite emotions — joy and sorrow — was established as a hallmark of much of Black religious music in the slave era, he said.

Frederick Douglass, a Black journalist, abolitionist and statesman during the slave era, describes the character of slave song — often performed by participants arranged in a circle — that is strikingly similar to later descriptions of the blues by the writer James Baldwin, according to Stuckey.

Following emancipations Stuckey writes in a paper on the origins of jazz and the blues, the sanctified church was a "potent source of influence in the development of jazz, and that sacred dance, especially ring dance, was essential to the process." Music and dance were inexorably linked, as they had been during the slave era and in Africa prior to enslavement, he said.

Modern Black musicians consciously drew on church music and cultural practices, Stuckey argues. That influence can be seen especially in the music of Mahalia Jackson, Louis Armstrong, Dizzy Gillespie, and Charles Mingus. In fact, Armstrong credited his musical style to the singing he did in church as a boy, as did Gillespie his sense of rhythm, according to Stuckey.

Initial Suspect In Oklahoma Bombing Found In San Bernardino

Macy Street house, near San Bernardino's Westside.

BY LARRY GERBER (AP)

An Army deserter initially thought to be a second suspect in the Oklahoma federal building bombing had no connection to the attack, the head of the FBI investigation said today.

Spc. 4 David Iniguez, 23, was seized by FBI agents Sunday at his sister's home in Muscogee near San Bernardino, 60 miles east of Los Angeles.

Iniguez was taken to the Westwood Federal Building, which houses the local FBI headquarters. Onlookers cursed him as he walked by, wearing a bulletproof vest, shorts and a white windbreaker over his head.

Questioning ruled out links to the bombing, Weldon Kennedy, the FBI special agent in charge of the Oklahoma City investigation, said at a news conference this morning.

"He has been turned over to military authorities," Kennedy said. "John Doe No. 2 has not been identified and remains at large."

"John Doe 2" is depicted as a dark-haired, square-jawed man with a heavy brow in a composite sketch released by federal authorities.

Iniguez went AWOL from Fort Riley, Kan., on Aug. 23, and was declared a deserter a month later, said Air Force Lt. Col. Joan Ferguson, a Pentagon spokeswoman. Iniguez was awaiting court-martial for possession and distribution of marijuana when he deserted, she said.

FBI agents said Iniguez was questioned because he had gone AWOL from the same base where Timothy McVeigh served and because of his similarity to the composite sketch of the second "John Doe."

McVeigh, 27, was arrested on Friday. A former GI with far-right political views, he was charged with taking part in the attack.

McVeigh served at Fort Riley, as did Terry Nichols, one of two brothers being held as material witnesses in the attack.

Silvia Flores, who owns the home where her brother was found, told a reporter from Los Angeles television station KTTV that Iniguez is "a nice person" who "would never have anything to do with the Oklahoma City bombing."

Bill Jones, 20, a neighbor who has lived across the street for six months, said the FBI showed up in cars shortly before 8:15 a.m.

Publisher's Mother Dies After Long Illness

If Barbara Bush was the mother of the nation, Mrs. Essie Brown was the mother of youth and adults in the community of Trenton, North Carolina.

On Tuesday, Mrs. Brown, mother of Hardy Brown, Publisher of Black Voice News, died after a long illness in Greensboro, NC.

Two brothers, Floyd & Harry Brown met and married two sisters, Essie & Lena Brown. Mrs. Brown married Floyd Brown, who preceded her in death, over 60 years ago. To this union eleven children were born. Two died in infancy.

Mrs. Brown was a homemaker, and shared the work responsibilities working in the field with her sharecropping family. Gardening was as much a part of her life as anything, especially when the stopped sharecropping.

As a mother she was active in the PTA when her children were in school. Scouting was very much a part of her life and the extension of her neighborhood mom was as Den mother for the scouts.

Mrs. Brown was an active member of St. Matthew's AME Church in Trenton before her illness. She was a member in good standing of the Eastern Stars. She was a strong supporter of her husband and his many political and organization activities.

Affirmative-Action

By Curtis McCullom

There is much talk nowadays regarding Affirmative-Action. The Supreme Court is presently hearing a case alleging reverse discrimination or "reverse bias." Reverse discrimination is the term coined by those (White American males) who have benefited most by the unfair system of blatant "in your face discrimination." It is the subject of many talk show hosts and the subject of editorials of many newspapers. Callers to the talk radio shows rarely have anything good to say about the beautiful ideal of Affirmative-Action programs.

Affirmative-Action programs originated as a means to comply with a directive, issued by the Kennedy Administration in 1961. The law says minorities and women must fill some slots in the business and professional world. Colleges, universities and businesses have developed Affirmative-Action programs to comply with various federal laws and regulations. Opponents claim that the practice is unfair because the minorities are less qualified than their White counterparts. However, the facts revealed that Affirmative-Action programs are fair and play an important role in righting terrible wrongs.

Tightly woven into the fabric of our society are discrimination and racism. Consequently, the attitude of White race superiority is common. Although the abolition of slavery ended by the 13th Amendment in 1865, racism and discrimination continue in a subtle form until now. If you were an African-American, areas of employment, areas of housing were off limits to you.

After slavery, to perpetrate a feeling of inferiority in Blacks, the Black American was forced to attend substandard schools taught by underqualified teachers in inadequate buildings using substandard material. In my native state of Mississippi, we used books that were outdated. These books discarded by the White school system were passed to us when they got new books.

Black teachers in the "colored system" could work in the system with far less training than the White teachers in the "White school districts." Many teachers in the state of Mississippi taught school with a high school diploma. How could we compete in the "race of life" when the opponent was so far out front? Dr. King said that Blacks must run faster to stay in the race, they started so far behind. Thus, the passing of Affirmative-Action laws assured these ill-treated citizens a chance denied them systematically, purposely and lawfully.

In the past, and under certain situations presently, your qualifications did not matter as a Black person; disqualification resulted because of you blackness. One of my most vivid memories as a boy showed discrimination was apparent. There were no Black mail carriers, no Black police officers, no Black member of Congress, and no Black bank workers. There were workers on these jobs doing menial tasks. "Good jobs" in the mind of Blacks in those days were janitorial jobs. Few Black children could aspire to be doctors, lawyers, police officers and other positions of influence; they had no role models. In a real sense, they were conditioned to believe that these positions were out of reach for them. Affirmative-Action became the vehicle used by the federal government to force the universities, colleges, and businesses to play fair. It made sure that minorities had the opportunity to apply for the job or position.

Ruled to be illegal were laws that resulted in legalized discrimination. Thus, change was effected. This change said the playing field will be leveled that all may play fairly. Now, after just a few years of Affirmative-Action programs, the White males are crying foul. Really, I understand why when we review the facts. Think about it; the White male has every privilege; he had every opportunity, every break because of his skin color. They were not the best; they were the only ones allowed to participate. This is just the reverse of what the Black man received during the same period.

Before Jackie Robinson, not one Black baseball player played in the major leagues. Not one Black man played in the NFL or the AFL during this period. No Black men played in the professional basketball leagues. Now that the door of opportunity has been opened, the greater percentage of professional athletes are Black. Blacks had the ability, and given the opportunity they excelled.

Crying foul regarding the Affirmative-Action issue is the cause for many questions. In the remaining space, we shall raise many pertinent questions. This writer hopes that we will have the courage to deal with them. The questions include: Are the beneficiaries of the racist system ready to admit they received privileges unfairly? Will they admit that they made many accomplishments under unfair conditions? Will they put an asterisk by all the statistics in all the sports books to show they played unfairly? One final question, will they admit that the reason for discrimination is that the Black man intimidates him? Therefore, they must hold him back to keep him from excelling in business, sports and other areas.

He has studied at Harding University, Searcy, Arkansas, Whitworth College, Brookhaven Mississippi, Investment Training Institute, Atlanta, Georgia and La Sierra University in Riverside, CA. He graduated from Whitworth College in 1978. Additionally, he was a private music student of the late Floyd B. Lee.

Can The GOP Make A Contract With Black America?

By Rev. Maurice Dawkins

The first 50 days of the 104th Congress finds the GOP proudly reporting that members have passed five of the 10 bills that the 'Contract' calls for. Debates over tax reform, welfare reform, term limits and legal reform promise to be more difficult than unfunded mandates, balanced budget, congressional reform, foreign policy reform and crime bill reform. All of these issues affect all Americans, not just Black Americans. The 'Contract with America' is therefore not aimed at any special group. So, when young Black conservatives ask for a Contract with Black America they are not being realistic. No, is the logical answer to the question: Can the GOP make a contract with Black America?

Clearly the Democrats have a monopoly on the strategy of singling out Blacks, Hispanics, Asians, and other ethnic groups for special arrangements, even hiring specialists and setting aside special budgets and printing special literature. Through the years a divide and rule strategy has kept the White liberals in control of the destiny of all minorities. Some of us used to call it plantation politics.

Clearly the Republican Party as a matter of principle, doesn't believe in that formula. Speaker Newt Gingrich (R-GA) has appointed an interracial task force to handle minority issues on behalf of the 104th Congress. Black Republicans have organized a National Task Force On Civil Rights to keep Senator Dole and the other GOP presidential hopefuls accountable when it comes to Black economic empowerment, Black political inclusion and Black access to the resources that will make Black progress a reality and not a dream.

Through the years a divide and rule strategy has kept the White liberals in control of the destiny of all minorities. Some of us used to call it plantation politics.

Since the GOP is in charge of the legislative agenda for the next two years, it might be a pragmatic strategy for Black Americans to contact and work with the Gingrich Task Force. Black Oklahoma clergyman J.C. Watts, the freshman congressman, is probably going to be co-chairman of the group with a White colleague. They have circulated a "Dear Republican Colleague" letter asking for support. Those Blacks who have Republicans representing their congressional districts should write and phone, urging their legislators to support the plan to protect the interests of the Black community.

I was just thinking this could turn out to be better than a contract—a blueprint, a statement or a commitment to specific laws and policies. We have become accustomed to this type of political action from the New Deal, the Fair Deal and the Great Society experiences. But perhaps an open minded, even-handed diagnosis of raced related problems might produce new solutions and get better results for the masses of Black folks.

1. First, it would sensitize all Republicans as to the dangers and opportunities the color line in current history presents.

2. It would provide a safety valve for racial tensions that stem from the confrontation of Georgia's Black John Lewis and Georgia's White Newt Gingrich.

3. It will provide bridge-heads of understanding across which bridges of cooperation can be built.

4. It would offer positive alternatives to a meat ax approach to civil rights laws and regulations and avoid throwing out the baby with the bath water.

5. It can get a new focus on Martin Luther King's teaching that a man should be judged by the content of his character and not by the color of his skin.

6. It will put an end to the prophecy of doom and gloom that assumes that Black progress must come to a screeching halt because Republicans won the Congress in the 1994 elections.

7. It will stir the conscience of thinking Blacks to remember we have no permanent friends, no permanent enemies, only permanent interests.

8. Reconciliation can emerge from a process of negotiation and conciliation on an issue by issue basis.

9. It will force Blacks, Whites, Browns, Yellows and Reds to seek and find a unity that permits diversity in a democratic process.

10. It will dispel the fears that an era of angry White men has arrived and substitute a faith that an angry God will make all of His children walk and talk together, pray and stay together, work and fight together against the common enemy of poverty, injustice, racism, and war.

11. It will encourage a new White voter and a new Black voter to build a new America for the next generation.

Rev. Maurice Dawkins served in the Lyndon Johnson Administration in a sub-cabinet appointment as Asst. Director for Civil Rights.

Will More Black Americans Join The Conservative Revolution?

By Derick Day

As Republicans in Congress carry through their conservative agenda, a question of great magnitude is being asked: What, if any, impact will the Republican stampede have on Black Americans?

If the fears of most liberals have any substance, the ascent of the Republican Party to majority status in Congress represented the death knell of Black advancement. As usual, liberal fears are unfounded and their philosophical basis is faulty. The modern conservative agenda is simply not hostile to Black Americans. But the hope of many conservative Republicans - that the Democrats will no longer possess unchallenged, unaccountable control over the Black vote — is likewise also unfounded. A massive shift of Black votes to the Republican Party is not likely to happen overnight. However, something of great historical significance has happened: the Republican Party has been presented with a golden opportunity to demonstrate the worth of its approaches to Black Americans.

There are significant policy differences between Republicans and Democrats on issues of concern to many Black Americans. Unlike the GOP, the entrenched "Black leadership" allied with the Democratic Party continually refuses to acknowledge that what is economically good for America is usually good for Black Americans. For example, cuts in the tax rate put forth by the Reagan Administration benefited Blacks especially well — during the eight years of the Reagan presidency, the Black middle class experienced unprecedented growth. Additionally, more Black millionaires were created during this period than in any other before or since. Black unemployment, too, was at an all-time low during the Reagan years. Yet, the traditional Black leadership discounts the economic gains made by Black Americans during the Reagan years, and continues to claim that an increase in the number and scope of federal government programs is the only way Black Americans will ever have an equal standard of living with White Americans.

Some of the programs ostensibly designed to help Black Americans reap the harvest of the American Dream have, instead, served to poison race relations. Affirmative-Action, race-based scholarships, and other quota-based initiatives have served their purpose and should now be dismantled. These programs have spawned a "White backlash" whose underlying theme is the notion that Black progress has come at the expense of Whites. While this is hardly true—after all, we do not live in a "zero-sum" society—quota-based programs do nothing to undercut the aforementioned perception. Under Republican control, the deconstruction of these programs is likely to take place. Already, the new Congress has held hearings to reevaluate existing affirmative action programs. Of course the Black leadership and other liberal pseudo thinkers have decried this policy as a throwback to the Jim Crow era. Nothing could be further from the truth. The ultimate insult to the ideal of America (which is that individuals are sovereign and are capable of shaping their own destiny) is that because of their race or ethnicity some individuals need government assistance in order to achieve success.

For far too long, liberal politicians have approached the Black community with the promise of hand-outs, giveaways, and other forms of patronization. This has worked as a means of delivering the bulk of the Black vote reliably to Black America, but giveaway policies have harmed Black communities. It is quite possible that now, with conservative policy makers finally able to demonstrate conservative approaches to community problems, we will finally see this hypocrisy exposed for what it is and Blacks will begin to question their blind allegiance to liberalism and to the Democratic Party.

The resounding message of conservatives is hope. It is a message that America is the land of opportunity; that one only need to work to seize it. Conservatives hold that given equal opportunity, individuals acting in their own enlightened self-interest will achieve success corresponding to their ambition and initiative. And, that this success will come without regard to race. Multitudes of Black success stories from Madame C.J. Walker, America's first female millionaire, to Reginald Lewis, America's first Black billionaire, illustrate the truth of the conservative message of hope. The conservative Republican Party operates from the posture that all Americans should be active participants in the pursuit of the American dream, but none should receive preferential treatment as a means to an end. The elimination of systemic preference as a mechanism of addressing years of systemic discrimination promoted by Republicans will mean that all Americans will be able to compete on the basis of merit.

The recent electoral victory of the Republican Party has and will continue to affect the American political, social, and economic landscape. The chance of focus from the liberal approach of using government revenues to try to assure equal outcome will be replaced by the conservative approach of using public and private resources together to try to assure equal opportunity. Blacks must interpret the results of these changes carefully.

The undisputed allegiance by Black Americans to the Democratic Party is undeserved. As problems in many Black communities continue to worsen, the traditional Black leadership and White patriarchs of the Democratic Party keep offering the same old government solutions that have contributed to the deterioration of those Black communities. Free-thinking Black Americans have realized that supporting candidates who promise everything, but do nothing, to improve the lot of those who live in abject poverty as a means of perpetuating a captive constituency is insane. Black Americans simply must begin to more carefully allocate their political capital, and to consider alternative approaches and loyalties in the years ahead.

Congressman Brown Hosts Conference To Address Science Education Needs

Congressman George E. Brown, Jr. (D-San Bernardino) and the American Physical Society (APS) hosted a day-long conference at California State University, San Bernardino (CSUSB) on Monday, April 24. The conference, titled, "Shaping Science Education to Meet the Industrial Needs of the 21st Century," brought together business, labor, government, academic and community leaders to determine what factors should shape science education in the next century, particularly in regards to the needs of industry.

The conference included four plenary speakers and six workshops. The workshops addressed linking small businesses with colleges and universities, leveraging technology, science education in kindergarten through 12th grade, examining whether college curricula meet the needs of industry, and the role of community colleges in worker training and retraining.

Dr. Walter E. Massey, Provost and Senior Vice President, Academic Affairs for the University of California, presented the first plenary address on how education in California can address the needs of industrial society. Dr. Massey came to the University from his position as Director of the National Science Foundation, to which he was appointed by former President Bush in 1991.

Brown also presented a morning plenary address. Becky Morgan, President and Chief Executive Officer of Joint Venture: Silicon Valley Network, discussed the business climate in California and the need for cooperation between business and higher education. Ms. Morgan previously served nine years as a California State Senator.

Dr. Martha Krebs, Director of the Office of Energy Research (OER) and the Department of Energy's Science and Technology Advisor, was the featured luncheon speaker at the conference. Dr. Krebs discussed government's role in fostering partnerships with higher education and industry.

DEAR DR. LEVISTER: Why do we get old? What happens to your brain and other body functions? 60 and going strong.

DEAR 60: The human is the only species whose life span is known to extend decades past their reproductive years. Other creatures fall by the wayside, succumbing to the predators of disease and violence while still in their prime. Because humans outlive their biological utility, they are subject to aging.

The old gray mare ain't what she used to be, she isn't aware of it, but humans are. In the early '90's with antibiotics and maternity care pushing the average life span into the 6th, 7th and 8th decade all aspects of the aging process increased in importance.

The life span of the cell is finite. It is genetically programmed and environmentally influenced. There is debate of oxygen-free radicals which disrupt cellular process and bouncer molecules called antioxidants. Many believe that his network becomes overworked causing cumulative energy drain on the cell.

As the cell ages its house-keeping goes to pot. Form declines as does function. The death toll mounts as the result of intracellular bickering. On the average by age 75 the number of cells in the human body has declined by as much as 30%. This has extracted a toll on every major organ system.

The major organ systems change in various ways as a natural consequence of age. Keep your eye on Our Bodies as we discuss the effects of aging on the skin and other body systems.

Dr. Levister welcomes reader mail concerning their body but regrets that he is not able to answer individual letters. Your letters will be incorporated into the column as space permits. You may direct your letters to Dr. Levister in care of Black Voice News, P.O. Box 1581, Riverside, CA 92502.

How Long Can I Keep My Ham?

QUESTION: How long can I keep a ham in the refrigerator before cooking it?

ANSWER: To answer this question, you need to know the type of ham you have and how it is packaged. Read the label. It provides a guide for determining storage time; it also states the product name, whether the ham has been smoked or cured, and whether it must be refrigerated. While the USDA does not require manufacturers to list a freshness date on products, many do. Look for guidelines regarding the best use of the product on the label.

Here are more guidelines for hams most commonly purchases:

- Fully cooked hams (not canned). These keep about a week in the refrigerator store in the coldest part. Check your refrigerator temperature.

- Fully cooked canned hams. Most need to be refrigerated; a few brands are processed so that refrigeration is not necessary.

- READ THE LABELS A canned ham requiring refrigeration will keep well for 6-9 months, if properly stored; one not needing refrigeration will keep up to a year. Make sure the can is not showing bulging, cracks, or severe dents.

- Country, country-style, or dry-cured hams. These are dried and cured with salt, then smoked and aged to provide distinctive flavor. They do not require refrigeration and keep well for several months. These hams continue to age during storage so the flavor continues to change. Mold patches often develop on the outer skin. Small patches should be trimmed away; the rest of the meat is good to eat. Once the hams are cut into, it is best to use them right away. They require extra time to prepare because of their saltiness and dryness and are usually soaked and simmered in water before serving.

Follow the instructions on your ham package or use reliable instructions from a cookbook.

Rev. Charles Brooks

St. Paul Announces "Spring Revival"

St. Paul AME will hold their Spring Revival beginning Monday, May 1st thru May 5th, 7:00 p.m. nightly. Dr. Oziel Brazil, Pastor of Providence First AME Church, Lompoc, CA will be the Evangelist.

Pastor Charles Brooks states, "The hour is come for Revival". There are evidences today that the Church needs Revival in order to affect the world and awaken and draw it to God and for the following reasons: (1) The breakdown of the home and family, (2) The moral bankruptcy of the nation and nothing but Revival will ever halt it, (3) The eruption of violence, drug addiction and devil worship, (4) The pleasure madness of our land, and (5) The decline of religion and Godlessness. Revival is desperately needed.

The public is invited to attend. St. Paul is located at 1355 W. 21st Street in San Bernardino. For more information, call (909) 887-1718.

What Does To Bible Say About Forgiveness?

QUESTION: Dear Pastor Woods, I have been done wrong many times. I have difficulty shaking loose these feelings of bitterness, hatred, and unforgiveness. I feel I am in bondage to these emotions. San Bernardino, CA

ANSWER: Mark 11:25 says, "And when you stand praying, forgive, if you have ought (anything) against anyone: that your Father also which is in heaven may forgive you your trespasses." "As far as God is concerned forgiving those who have offended us is not optional; it is a requirement. Question: would God command us to do something that we were incapable of accomplishing? Answer: NO. God will always supply us with the energy, enthusiasm and ability to accomplish His will (Philippians 2:13). The key is to realize that we cannot accomplish this with our own human power, but we must rely upon God's love that is in us to supply us the necessary resources to forgive (Romans 5:5). It is virtually impossible to forgive others with human strength. But thank God we are not limited to human strength but have access to Divine love!

Questions & Answers

Forgiveness always begins with a decision, not necessarily because the person "deserves forgiveness" but that we want to remain in God's will and be free from the crippling chains of unforgiveness. My prayer for you is that you take your concern to the Lord and ask Him for His strength and love to flow through you. You can do it!

If you have a question that you would like answered, write: Dr. Reginald L. Woods, Life Changing Ministries, P.O. Box 9778, San Bernardino, CA 92427-9778.

"Sugar" Too Sweet For Hernandez

by Paul Alvarez-
BVN Sports Writer

WOODLAND HILLS- The Inland Empire's own "Sugar" Shane Mosley knocked out Mexico City's Raul Hernandez last week, at the Warner Center Marriot in Woodland Hills, CA. The knock-out occurred two minutes into the second round. Mosley who is 17-0 with 16 KO's holds the WBC Light-Weight title.

Foreman - Schulz Slugfest Ends In Decision

Foreman, the darling of middle-aged America, takes a pounding, but dishes it out too, in retaining IBF title.

By LELAND STEIN III
BVN Sports Editor

LAS VEGAS - Before George Foreman's first heavyweight title defense ever in the U.S. and first since his dramatic upset over Michael Moorer, when he became the oldest heavyweight champion in boxing history, all the pugilistic experts envisioned that Foreman would have no worries against unheralded German Axel Schulz.

Fighters' entrance music is always interesting, and Foreman's song of choice for this title encounter showed us that he had been listening to the pre-fight talk about Schulz.

George took us back to Disneyland with his choice of the "Lion King's" theme song, in particular, the phrase "Hakuna Matata" ("no worries") was blasting over the MGM Grand Garden's loudspeakers as Foreman danced around his opponent and the ring during the pre-fight introductions.

After the first seven rounds of the International Boxing Federation title contest, Foreman, 46, was playing a solid impression of Mufasa the wise old lion, and Schulz, 26, Simba the young lion.

Foreman (74-4), before 11,111 at the MGM Grand Garden, built his early lead using a sledge hammer-like jab and occasional rights. Although he looked slow, he was able to cut off the ring early on and land his shots. Schulz (21-2-1) was content to stick and move, while staying clear of Foreman's famous right hand.

At the fight's conclusion, many in the audience felt

TEDDY BEAR: George Foreman at the post fight press conference, has the big Teddy Bear smile after retaining the IBF title. Photo by Hassan Ali-Bahar-BVN

Schulz had earned the victory, especially the throngs of German followers who descended on Las Vegas to witness only the third German fighter to contend for a heavyweight title - Max Schmeling in 1938 versus Joe Louis and Karl Mildenberger in 1966 versus Muhammad Ali were the others.

"He ran, and you don't give a fighter a championship for running," said Foreman about his victory. "He was in there running from a 46 year-old man. I kept telling him to come get this hot toddy."

Schulz, just as Simba did in the "Lion King" movie, learned his lessons and started to mix it up more with Big George. In fact, from the eighth round on he controlled the fight and continually peppered the champ's left eye that was swollen as big as a baseball after the fight.

Appearing quicker and throwing one-two-three combinations, Schulz raised his arms after the fight in a victory dance. Maybe he thought he won, but maybe it was also in wonderment that he had survived and even was the fresher fighter at the end.

"I thought the way I fought was right . . . no take too many punches," said Schulz through an interpreter. "I thought I took his power away after the middle rounds. Our strategy worked, but we had to fight against the judges and scorers."

Foreman, 29-2 since his coming out of retirement in 1987, was busier in this fight than at anytime during his storied rejuvenation. He threw 543 punches and landed 249, including 111 jabs, while Schulz threw 482 and connected on 229. But Schulz did have the advantage in power punches landed, connecting on 150 out of 334 to Foreman's 134 out of 312.

Foreman concurred that the German was landing bombs. "My chin is hang'in, eye all swollen . . . the man is tough," he said at the post fight press conference, "but, I was there today also."

The fight had an international flavor to it. With the large German contingent voicing their approval for Schulz's every move, and waving the German flag high, the U.S. fans became engulfed in patriotic pride. The chant of USA began to ring throughout the Grand Garden, and back-and-forth it went for most of the fight. The rally cry for George became a source of strength and pride for him.

"I felt like I was doing something special when they started chanting USA for me," said Foreman, who collected $10 million for his effort. "I would have rather died than let those people down today. I was able to fight for them. It (the USA chant) gave me something extra to reach for."

With the crowd really into the fight, the old lion (George) had just enough to earn the decision and keep the title from the young lion from Germany. Still Schulz's display of heart, ability to take a solid punch and quickness, should place him in position for another shot at the title and a large payday against the other young heavyweights prowling the heavyweight ranks these days.

In the earlier fight, Albuquerque's Danny Romero took the IBF flyweight title from Francisco Tejedor (43-3) of Barranquilla, Colombia.

In winning the title, Romero, became the first American flyweight champion in 64 years.

Romero (24-0) gained the unanimous decision by punching with power in both hands and knocking the ex-champ through the rope in the 12th

Lakers to battle Seattle Tonight in 1st round of the playoffs

BVN Sports Editor

LOS ANGELES - The Lakers are headed to Seattle to contest a team that is on a mission to exercise the demons from their playoff disaster of a year ago. After having the best record in the NBA (63-19) last year, Seattle was knocked out of the playoffs in the first round by Denver.

The Lakers meanwhile, were on a pace to win 50 games, but took a nose-dive during a 10 game stretch that saw them win only twice during that time.

It has been a somewhat puzzling run, considering the Lakers got back two of their main men from injury, Eddie Jones and Cedric Ceballos, and each played well in their returns.

During a stretch without Jones and Ceballos, the Lakers put together a string of solid wins that had people thinking they may have the right stuff to move deep into the playoffs.

Great efforts from reserves Anthony Miller, Anthony Peeler and Lloyd Daniels, coupled with the improved play of Vlade Divac, Elden Campbell and Nick Van Exel, had the whole NBA talking about the genius of GM Jerry West and the steady leadership of first year coach Del Harris.

No matter what happens for the Lakers in the playoffs, the season has to be stamped a success. They have won 48 game this year and have established a core of young players to continue to build the team around.

Even the fans have rediscovered that the Lakers are an exciting and fun bunch to spend an evening with; they ended the season with six straight sellouts and had 13 overall for the season, compared to four all of last year.

So, Thursday at 7:30 p.m. the Lakers will begin their second season against a team they beat four out of five time during the regular season, but if they can not recall the magic they once had, we will just have to find solace in the fact that they are truly moving in the right direction as a team and franchise.

We Shall Overcome

Together, We Can

By Charles Ledbetter

"We can understand our human experience only when we remember that we are made in the image and likeness of the Creator and Provider of the Universe. Little can be understood about ourselves unless we remember that we were made to find satisfaction and meaning only in a condition of dependence of the One who made us. This allows for enormous implications in dealing with our insecurities, fears, anxieties, and discouragements." (Tim Jackson)

"WE SHALL OVERCOME." I borrowed these words from the song, "We Shall Overcome." We have lost the Superintendent of Moreno Valley Unified School District, Mr. Robert C. Lee, and we must function as a progressive community as we seek a replacement for the school district. We are in the process of losing a young man who has accomplished a lot for the Moreno Valley schools, community, churches and March Air Force Base. Bob Lee possesses four qualities that impressed me and my friends, they are: 1) practical intelligence plus all the technical knowledge needed to perform his job; 2) he is a hardworking person; 3) he is emotionally mature; and 4) loves his family, has set his personal goals and is pursuing them.

We are friends, and as we discussed his new job, he reminded me that now is the time for all of us to become a team for progress. I feel the same way, why not? As a member of the Board of Education, former student and teacher of Moreno Valley, Perris, Val Verde, Riverside and San Bernardino, I can say that we have had the experience, blessings and friendship of one of the greatest, most knowledgeable, community minded family man as Superintendent of Education. I have known him and his family since 1971. I know this man and his family as people who have attempted to improve the living conditions of all people. He respects all races. (He was color blind, and we always look for this quality in our hiring procedure.) He is the man who was the leader that took this Moreno Valley education system from one high school to four, one junior high to six, and six elementary schools to where there are now, 23. This was accomplished under Mr. Lee's leadership, and there was not the least bit discomfort to the citizens of Moreno Valley. He will achieve a lot in his new assignment and then go higher.

We had to talk. As we discussed his transfer last week, I congratulated him and thanked him for what he had done for me and the Moreno Valley community. I met Bob when I was stationed at March Air Force Base. He has always extended the hand of fellowship to me. He is one of the reasons that I am very proud to be an American. He reminds me of the Christian love that we all should pursue. He was a wonderful person to talk to when situations brought up doubt the WE WOULD OVERCOME. I listened to him and he listened to me. African Americans, he was and is your friend. Another community will reap the benefits of having this great man as the leader of their educational system.

tem. As we talked about his future, and the future of the Moreno Valley education system, he advised me that now is the time for all of us to work together as a team. He said that now is the time for elected officials on the Board of Education to work together as a unit, because hiring a man or woman to take his place will be one of the most important tasks of the school board. I say, we owe it to the citizens of Moreno Valley to work together and hire the best person we can. We can do it, so let us do it. Together we can.

Hankins Takes The World By Storm

By Cydni Lattimore-BVN

He is affectionately known as "Everybody's Boyfriend". He is also today's hottest African-American designer of ready to wear clothes for the urban contemporary woman. Anthony Mark Hankins is a 26 year old designer of some of the most fantastic clothes for today's working woman.

He began designing at the tender age of seven, by making a new suit for his mother to wear to a wedding. From that point on, he was making dresses for his twin sister's formal occasions and tuxedos for himself to accompany her.

At the age off 19, he decided to go to Paris. He felt that he would need to learn a certain level of design in order to have his own line. He studied under Yves Saint Laurent, who taught Anthony how to be organized and focused. He came back to the states and began making his own designs.

His designs are geared for any age group. He is particularly trying to reach the working woman who has a lot of spirit, style and class.

He is currently working on a children's pattern line and continues to introduce new styles with every season.

You can find Anthony Mark Hankins designs at JC Penney.
